If you want something bad enough, you have to go out and work for it — The Circleville Tigers wanted another South Central Ohio League championship and they got it with fine hustle and hard work as they rolled to a 62-38 decision over Madison Plains Friday night before a large Parent's Night crowd at the Mill St. gym.

The Tigers ran their league mark to 12-1 as they added another basketball trophy to the glass case at the high school.

It was Biff Bumgarner, the Tiger strongman, who once again led the Red and Black Cats on a rampage as he had 11 goals from the field and three from the charity stripe for 25 points. He also hauled in 12 rebounds as he showed more muscle than a piece of steak from a discount meat market.

George Moore and Mike McCoy also added 10 points for the night, Brent Mancini and Frank Merrill each netted six, Warren Yamarick and Brian Fath both hooped two and Rusty Holbrook added one.

Rick Timmons paced Madison

Plains with 16 markers, Dave Wilson added 14, Doug Sifrit netted four, Dave Saunders tallied two and Jeff Curry and Gary Self each had one.

Circleville had a good night from the floor as the Tigers hit 26 of 52 attempts for 50 per cent. They converted 10 of 14 foul shots for 71 per cent.

The tight Tiger man to man defense put some pressure on the usually hot-shooting Golden Eagles who managed to net 16 of 41 from the field for 40 per cent. They hit six of 11 from the foul

Ford Starts Tough Campaign Talk

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — President Ford has started talking tough on the campaign trail. Without naming names, he is implying that his opponents are extreme rightwingers, nitpickers or irresponsible foot-draggers.

Ford said only a moderate can win a national election, and he predicted that he'll beat Ronald Reagan in Florida's March 9 GOP presidential primary — the race which brought both candidates to Florida today.

Reagan was to address a Lincoln Day dinner in Orlando, while Ford was to make a series of appearances in St. Petersburg, Ft. Myers and Miami.

Stepping up both the pace and rhetoric of his campaign, Friday's politicking was an abrupt change of style for Ford, who has spent months working up an image as a busy president doing his job in dignity and avoiding the partisan combat of the campaign trail.

"I think he's just starting to feel like a candidate," said one campaign aide Friday night. "It's not any grand design, but I can't say we're unhappy about it."

Ford isn't yet criticizing the other presidential candidates by name, but the innuendo hangs heavy and the message unmistakable.

The strongest words spoken so far in his campaign came Friday in answer to questions about Reagan, Ford's opponent for the Republican nomination. But Democrats in general and Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., in particular, also drew Ford's political fire.

In an exchange with reporters at the Fort Lauderdale airport, Ford was asked if Reagan's candidacy was splintering the party.

"I don't think it is too divisive. It is a good contest," Ford said, then launching into a description of his own campaign, drawn to place Reagan in a harsh contrast.

"I am running on my record," Ford said. "I think it is a good record, and I think it conforms with the moderate Republican philosophy that is necessary to win. Anything to the extreme right of that can't win a national election."

Later Ford was asked about charges that his policy of detente was harmful to U.S. security — an attack made frequently by Reagan.

"It's better to keep your powder dry than have your pistol out and launch an all-out nuclear holocaust," replied Ford.

Earlier, in a news conference with Florida reporters in Orlando, Ford was asked about a Reagan attack on his detente policy. He brushed aside Reagan's criticism as "rhetoric," and asked about similar criticism from Jackson, Ford said, "I think nit-picking of an American foreign policy doesn't help."

Valentine Verses Of Old Said Best

RYDAL, Pa. (AP) — "Silk, satin, cotton, wool, Dressed, you look a perfect doll; Ribbons, feathers, flowers, lace, Can't make amends for such a face."

The verse from an 18th Century "penny dreadful" is one of Diane Apfelbaum's favorites. It's in her collection of 15,000 antique Valentine cards.

Mrs. Apfelbaum, 46, who is vice president of her husband's stamp firm in Philadelphia, collects old Valentines she finds on buying trips throughout the United States and Europe.

Most of the fancy, hand-made cards in her collection date from the mid-19th Century. Some are decorated with lace, ribbons and flowers painted on silk. There also are three-dimensional "standup" Valentines, which unfold to reveal cupids, hearts, flowers and sentimental verses.

Besides the European "penny dreadfuls," or comics, of the late 1880s, Mrs. Apfelbaum is partial to sentimental Valentines.

"At the time of Civil War, Valentines home of four of the nine Democratic candidates — as "dilly-dallying" on the energy crisis and "sitting on its haunches" on aid to the states.

Meanwhile, Ford's Friday veto of a $6.1 billion public works employment bill drew fire from Gov. George Wallace of Alabama. Campaigning in Tampa, Fla., he said the measure could be used as "a temporary stop-gap in the present high-unemployment economy."

Democratic opponents Jimmy Carter and Jackson — Wallace's main foes in Florida — also were expected to campaign in Florida over the weekend.

were lovely and flowery and often used as proposals of marriage by young men who didn't want to talk of such things.

"Then, late in the 19th Century, people changed and sentiment became uncomfortable ... which led to the sarcastic, biting comic Valentines," she said.

"Today, instead of expressing our feelings and taking time to make something nice, we have allowed Valentine's Day to become terribly commercial.

"Now most Valentines are purchased by the boxful by schoolchildren and handed out by a teacher in the classroom. That makes me feel sad and disillusioned."

Mrs. Apfelbaum said she began collecting Valentines about five years ago after all her four children were of school age.

"I wasn't a stamp person at the time; no background, no interest and equipped for zilch," she said. "So in order to learn the business, I began to study postal history."

"I discovered the best way to start a collection and I chose antique Valentines, each one complete with its 'cover,' which is the mailing envelope, stamped and postmarked."

Valentines in her collection with decorated and printed covers, which sold for a penny or two in the 1800s, are worth $150 and more today.

Jobs Bill Veto Likely To Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is taking a pessimistic view of its chances for upholding President Ford's veto of a $6.1 billion public works jobs bill.

Ford vetoed the bill on Friday, calling it "little more than an election year pork barrel." The President contended the public works bill would "do little to create jobs for the unemployed."

Backers of the bill said it would provide 600,000 new jobs.

House Democratic Leader Thomas O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts branded the presidential action "another deplorable example of President Ford's disdain for the nation's unemployed" and predicted the House, which passed the bill 321 to 80 last month, would muster far more than the two-thirds majority needed to override Ford's veto.

The House vote is scheduled for Thursday. If the House overrides the veto, Senate action would follow soon after.

Senate leaders had no predictions on

Mississippi Demos Study Candidates

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — George Wallace and two other candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination hoped to pick up support today from the previously uncommitted as the process for selecting Mississippi's national convention delegates continued.

Jack Shearer Jr., Wallace's state coordinator, predicted the Alabama governor would strengthen his hand during the county conventions and wind up with at least 16 of the state's 24 delegates.

Wallace dominated Jan. 24 precinct caucuses that selected delegates to today's county conventions. The second largest pool of delegates was unpledged.

Delegates selected at the county conventions move to the five congressional district caucuses next Saturday that will select 19 of the nominating delegates. The state convention will select the other five.

Wallace on Friday urged "Mississippi uncommitted delegates ... to join with the majority vote in your state to send a real message to the Democratic party that we will have a new day in 1976."

"It would be a great step forward in our 1976 campaign to return the Democratic party to the people and to get real people action on the platform and in the nomination process this year," he said.

Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter and R. Sargent Shriver were the other two candidates who won appreciable support in still largely unreported precinct caucus returns.

Campaign workers for all three candidates actively sought to sway uncommitted delegates and they predict that many of the unpledged will announce for candidates at the county conventions.

the outcome of an override attempt, but the bill passed the Senate by more than a two-thirds majority.

Max Friedersdorf, chief White House lobbyist, conceded Friday that "obviously, it's going to be difficult" to sustain Ford's veto.

"It's pork barrel," Friedersdorf said of the bill. "There are a lot of goodies in there for members of Congress."

Friedersdorf said he and his staff would emphasize last month's drop in unemployment and the high cost of the bill in their attempts to convince members of Congress to support the veto.

But House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., expressed the congressional leadership's position when he said, "It is beyond me to understand why he (Ford) would not want to invest one-third of the nearly $20 billion we are paying in unemployment compensation payments ... and put 600,000 people back to work."

The veto was Ford's 46th. Eight have been overridden, the most recent the $45 billion money bill for labor, health and welfare programs. That veto was overridden late last month.

The jobs bill has strong backing from local government officials. It would supply $2.5 billion in grants to state and local governments for construction or improvement of schools, sewers and other projects.

A controversial item in the bill is "anti-recession" aid grants to state and local governments. It would be triggered when unemployment hits 6 per cent to guarantee continuation of public services.

It would pay out $125 million for each three-month period during the next 15 months for each half percentage point above the 6 per cent unemployment percentage. It seeks to fill the gap where rising costs have resulted in layoffs of public employees at the local level.

"Dietary fiber" is a phrase you hear a lot these days. Why? Studies show there are strong indications that low fiber in the diet increases the hazard - or incidence - of colon cancer, diverticulitis, tumors, and high cholesterol levels. What is "fiber" and why are our diets low in it?

Processed foods have been a blessing for us in many ways, but processing removes the natural bulk, roughage, or "fiber" from foods. This is the indigestible part, mainly carbohydrate in the form of cellulose, pectins and gums. This undigested part of foods, fruits and vegetables especially, is extremely important to the healthy activity in the intestinal tract. From 1/4 to 1/2 of raw fruits and vegetables is indigestible fiber.

What does processing do? For instance, there is almost twice as much fiber in a whole apple as there is in applesauce. There is practically no fiber in fruit juice. Incidentally, 1-3 of all processed fruit is in the form of juice.

Whole wheat bread has eight times as much fiber as white bread. Brown rice has three times more fiber than processed white rice.

How much processed food are we eating in this country? In 1940, the average consumption per person was 250 pounds of fresh fruit and vegetables per year; in 1970 it was down to 180 pounds, a 26 per cent decrease in 30 years. In 1940 a person ate about 65 pounds of processed food a year; but in 1970 this was up to 110 pounds, a 70 per cent increase. Whole wheat flour and cereal use decreased 37 per cent in those years, from 175 pounds down to 100 pounds in 1970. It is estimated there has been a total of 80 per cent decrease intake of fiber in this country this century. No wonder we have so many millions spent on digestive medicines each year!

The following are tips from Ohio State University nutrition specialists on increasing fiber content in the diet. I might also add that these practices will also bring healthy vitamins and minerals into the diet as well.

—Use whole grain or unrefined cereal products whenever possible. If you eat four slices of bread a day, changing from white bread to whole wheat bread increases your crude fiber intake by 1.4 grams.

—If you like to try new recipes, you might want to explore some of the whole grain recipes for breads, cookies, and other products.

—Include different kinds of fruits and vegetables in your meals. These do not have to be fresh foods - many of the canned and frozen fruits and vegetables contain as much fiber as do the fresh varieties.

—When eating fresh fruits and vegetables eat the peel - don't discard it. Much of the fiber is found in the skin.

—Dried beans, dried fruit, and nuts are good sources of fiber. Including these foods in the diet helps to increase fiber intake.

Pest Management Missing Link In Dollar Return

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Pest management takes the guesswork out of crop pest controls and returns more dollars to the producer.

As one Licking County producer, John Reese of Alexandria, put it, pest management has been the missing link in the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service's program for economic crop production. He feels the program should be developed for all producers in the state.

Reese was among some 31 farmer cooperators in the pilot program that was set up in Licking County in 1973. The program operated by the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service with support funds from the federal government. Dr. B. D. Blair, Extension entomologist, and Dr. Edward W. Stroube, Extension agronomist, both of The Ohio State University, took the lead. Along with County Extension Agent Merle E. Scheetz, the pilot program was set up in Licking County.

Pest management means keeping a close check on insects and weeds (the pests involved in the pilot program) and determining when infestation levels are reached that are economically damaging to profitable returns, Blair explains. Trained scouts, financed partly by federal funds and partly by the farmers themselves, provided this information for producers in the pilot program so they could apply selected chemicals, where needed, on specific pests and at the proper time, the specialist says. The program takes into account not only the insect and weed monitoring segments but also environmental aspects. Pest management often reduces and sometimes eliminates use of chemical sprays, Blair says.

In 1975, cooperating farmers were paying $1.50 per acre for the monitoring work. Continuing the program will depend on how many producers are willing to support it on their own this year. Blair is optimistic, pointing out that 2 counties have already signed sufficient farmers to operate on their own in 1976. Without the federal support program, per acre cost to the producer will depend on how many cooperators sign up with a county and the number of acres involved. Licking County has already organized for 1976 operations and is going with $4 per acre. Ashland County farmers are in the process of organizing, Blair says, and a committee in Medina County met once and reacted favorably.

John Brooks, also of Alexandria and Licking County cooperator, agrees with Reese that the program is worth more than the $1.50 per acre they paid under the federal support pilot program. Reese, saying it is the best tool that has come along in many years for getting technical information out to the farmer, had 225 acres in the program.

Brooks had 130 acres of no-till corn and 60 acres of alfalfa. Through the use of trained scouts keeping an eye on his fields and resulting recommendations from Blair, Brooks spot-treated his alfalfa for leafhoppers and nearly doubled his yields.

Scouts, who are students mainly from the Agricultural Technical Institute (ATI) at Wooster, are specifically trained to diagnose problems. They are trained to identify crop pests and scout fields for weed problems. They determine the difference between insect, disease, bird and rodent damage. Scouting reports are reviewed by county agents, who along with Dr. Blair and Dr. Stroube, give control recommendations.

It is estimated that one scout can cover a maximum of 4,000 acres per week, checking each field once a week, in typical Corn Belt fields. Fields

Soybean Performance Results

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Farmers looking for better soybean varieties to plant in 1976 may find some answers in the new publication, "Ohio Soybean Performance Trials - 1975." The publication, Agronomy Department Series 212, lists the results of trials sponsored by the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service and the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center.

The purpose of the trials is to evaluate soybean varieties, brands and blends for yield, plant characteristics and Phytophthora root rot tolerance, says Gordon J. Ryder, Extension agronomist at The Ohio State University. The evaluation, he explains, gives the soybean producer comparative information for selecting soybean seed.

The publication, available at county Cooperative Extension Service offices, contains 1975 data for maturity, lodging, plant height and seed size. Yields are shown for the past 3 years.

Ryder notes that entries in the Ohio Performance Trials are accepted if the seed will be available to Ohio farmers for the planting season following the trials. All 1975 entries were submitted voluntarily by 14 seed companies and the Ohio Seed Improvement Association.

Yields varied widely among the 66 entries in the 1975 trials. The top yield was 68.4 bushels per acre, while the low yield was 43.6. Because of more favorable weather conditions, yields were considerably better than the 22.9 to 37.2 bushels per acre in 1974.

Cooperating with Ryder in making the report were James E. Beuerlein, area Extension agent, Mt. Gilead, and A. F. Schmitthenner, professor at OARDC.

4-H...People Helping People

By STEVE BARTELS
County Extension Agent,
4-H

The year 1975 was a banner one for the Ohio 4-H program, with more than 212,000 4-H members participating. This record 4-H membership surpassed all previous records in Ohio's 73 year 4-H history. Many factors contributed to this tremendous success. One of the special reasons for this success has been the special emphasis made by Extension faculty, 4-H Program Assistants, and 4-H advisors throughout the state, to reach the unreached.

Included in Ohio's 212,000 4-H members, were more than 51,000 from cities of more than 50,000 population. 109,000 4-H members came from villages, towns and cities under 50,000 population. The remaining 52,000 4-H members lived on farms throughout Ohio.

The rapid increase in the 4-H enrollment in urban, suburban and inner-city areas has been possible to a great extent because of additional 4-H project opportunities available to Ohio's young people. In 1975, more than 180 different 4-H project opportunities were offered. Included in this offering were projects in urban horticulture; small animal projects such as guinea pigs, hamsters, rabbits, pigeons, and dogs; along with several new projects in gardening and the clothing areas. Bicycles, saddle horses and many new offerings in the food and conservation areas have also contributed to this increased interest by youth previously not reached.

Additionally, through the Ohio 4-H program, several thousand youth enrolled in one or more of 80 new and different 4-H experimental projects. These projects, approved by county Extension agents, were designed to try new approaches and new areas currently untried or tested through 4-H. This approach provides the setting to determine what project offerings best meet Ohio's expanding 4-H membership. The feedback through this approach has been overwhelming.

The addition of 4-H Program Assistants two years ago has also been of tremendous help in reaching new audiences throughout the state. These 4-H Program Assistants, working closely with county Extension agents generally on a 20-hour week, have opened many doors for Ohio's young people. Many new volunteers have been recruited by 4-H Program Assistants, and a large number of new 4-H clubs have been organized. The employment of these 4-H Program Assistants was made possible through the support of county and federal funds.

As the 4-H program continues to improve and expand in the future, the key factor to the continued growth of the program will be the continued interest and dedication by more than 20,000 volunteer 4-H advisors. These volunteer leaders, giving leadership in 1975 to more than 9,300 different 4-H clubs, have made it possible for 4-H to reach so many young people.

Through the continued interest in young people by business leaders, elected officials, parents, and volunteers, the Ohio 4-H program will continue to strive to "Make the Best Better," the motto of 4-H for many years.

Park Cash Being Sought

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The U.S. Bureau of Outdoor Recreation will be asked by state Natural Resources Director Robert W. Teater to provide more than 4.6 million in matching funds for 75 local park and recreation projects in Ohio.

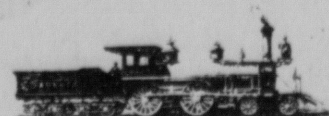

The federal money is available through the Land and Water Conservation Act of 1965. Under the act the federal government provides up to half the funds for public outdoor recreation projects and the sponsoring cities, counties and park districts provide the balance.

He said the projects have all been approved by the Ohio Recreation and Resources Commission.

The $4.6 million to local governments represents 67 per cent of the $6.6 million in federal funds the state will receive for outdoor recreation projects during the current fiscal year, Teater said.

"This is the largest share of the Ohio allocation ever granted by the Department of Natural Resources to local projects," he said.

"Dietary fiber" is a phrase you hear a lot these days. Why? Studies show there are strong indications that low fiber in the diet increases the hazard - or incidence - of colon cancer, diverticulitis, tumors, and high cholesterol levels. What is "fiber" and why are our diets low in it?

Processed foods have been a blessing for us in many ways, but processing removes the natural bulk, roughage, or "fiber" from foods. This is the indigestible part, mainly carbohydrate in the form of cellulose, pectins and gums. This undigested part of foods, fruits and vegetables especially, is extremely important to the healthy activity in the intestinal tract. From 1/4 to 1/2 of raw fruits and vegetables is indigestible fiber.

What does processing do? For instance, there is almost twice as much fiber in a whole apple as there is in applesauce. There is practically no fiber in fruit juice. Incidentally, 1-3 of all processed fruit is in the form of juice. Whole wheat bread has eight times as much fiber as white bread. Brown rice has three times more fiber than processed white rice.

How much processed food are we eating in this country? In 1940, the average consumption per person was 250 pounds of fresh fruit and vegetables per year; in 1970 it was down to 180 pounds, a 26 per cent decrease in 30 years. In 1940 a person ate about 65 pounds of processed food a year; but in 1970 this was up to 110 pounds, a 70 per cent increase. Whole wheat flour and cereal use decreased 37 per cent in those years, from 175 pounds down to 100 pounds in 1970. It is estimated there has been a total of 80 per cent decrease intake of fiber in this country this century. No wonder we have so many millions spent on digestive medicines each year!

The following are tips from Ohio State University nutrition specialists on increasing fiber content in the diet. I might also add that these practices will also bring healthy vitamins and minerals into the diet as well.

—Use whole grain or unrefined cereal products whenever possible. If you eat four slices of bread a day, changing from white bread to whole wheat bread increases your crude fiber intake by 1.4 grams.

—If you like to try new recipes, you might want to explore some of the whole grain recipes for breads, cookies, and other products.

—Include different kinds of fruits and vegetables in your meals. These do not have to be fresh foods - many of the canned and frozen fruits and vegetables contain as much fiber as do the fresh varieties.

—When eating fresh fruits and vegetables eat the peel - don't discard it. Much of the fiber is found in the skin.

—Dried beans, dried fruit, and nuts are good sources of fiber. Including these foods in the diet helps to increase fiber intake.

Pest Management Missing Link In Dollar Return

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent, Agriculture

Pest management takes the guesswork out of crop pest controls and returns more dollars to the producer.

As one Licking County producer, John Reese of Alexandria, put it, pest management has been the missing link in the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service's program for economic crop production. He feels the program should be developed for all producers in the state.

Reese was among some 31 farmer cooperators in the pilot program that was set up in Licking County in 1973. The program operated by the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service with support funds from the federal government, Dr. B. D. Blair, Extension entomologist, and Dr. Edward W. Stroube, Extension agronomist, both of The Ohio State University, took the lead. Along with County Extension Agent Merle E. Scheetz, the pilot program was set up in Licking County.

Pest management means keeping a close check on insects and weeds (the pests involved in the pilot program) and determining when infestation levels are reached that are economically damaging to profitable returns, Blair explains. Trained scouts, financed partly by federal funds and partly by the farmers themselves, provided this information for producers in the pilot program so they could apply selected chemicals, where needed, on specific pests and at the proper time, the specialist says. The program takes into account not only the insect and weed monitoring segments but also environmental aspects. Pest management often reduces and sometimes eliminates use of chemical sprays, Blair says.

In 1975, cooperating farmers were paying $1.50 per acre for the monitoring work. Continuing the program will depend on how many producers are willing to support it on their own this year. Blair is optimistic, pointing out that 2 counties have already signed sufficient farmers to operate on their own in 1976. Without the federal support program, per acre cost to the producer will depend on how many cooperators sign up with a county and the number of acres involved. Licking County has already organized for 1976 operations and is going with $4 per acre. Ashland County farmers are in the process of organizing, Blair says, and a committee in Medina County met once and reacted favorably.

John Brooks, also of Alexandria and Licking County cooperator, agrees with Reese that the program is worth more than the $1.50 per acre they paid under the federal support pilot program. Reese, saying it is the best tool that has come along in many years for getting technical information out to the farmer, had 225 acres in the program.

Brooks had 130 acres of no-till corn and 60 acres of alfalfa. Through the use of trained scouts keeping an eye on his fields and resulting recommendations from Blair, Brooks spot-treated his alfalfa for leafhoppers and nearly doubled his yields.

Scouts, who are students mainly from the Agricultural Technical Institute (ATI) at Wooster, are specifically trained to diagnose problems. They are trained to identify crop pests and scout fields for weed problems. They determine the difference between insect, disease, bird and rodent damage. Scouting reports are reviewed by county agents, who along with Dr. Blair and Dr. Stroube, give control recommendations.

It is estimated that one scout can cover a maximum of 4,000 acres per week, checking each field once a week, in typical Corn Belt fields. Fields showing signs of problems get checked once every 3 days during problem periods.

Like Brooks' alfalfa field where yields jumped to 5 or 6 tons per acre following scout checks on leafhopper damage — most leafhopper damage occurs on second and third cuttings, Blair points out. Many people wrongly blame poor stands on weather and disease. Leafhopper damage is hard to spot due to the insect's feeding characteristics. It doesn't chew the foliage but sucks food nutrients from the plants, making damage hard to detect in early stages.

Farmers in the program also increase their returns even where pesticide usage is increased, because pesticides are recommended only when there is an indication of an economical return advantage, Blair says.

The pest management program also cuts down on weed and insect misidentification and wasted spraying. "It's a good program," says Blair, "and we are not too far away from helping all Ohio crop producers turn wasted dollars into profits."

Soybean Performance Results

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent, Agriculture

Farmers looking for better soybean varieties to plant in 1976 may find some answers in the new publication, "Ohio Soybean Performance Trials — 1975." The publication, Agronomy Department Series 212, lists the results of trials sponsored by the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service and the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center.

The purpose of the trials is to evaluate soybean varieties, brands and blends for yield, plant characteristics and Phytophthora root rot tolerance, says Gordon J. Ryder, Extension agronomist at The Ohio State University. The evaluation, he explains, gives the soybean producer comparative information for selecting soybean seed.

The publication, available at county Cooperative Extension Service offices, contains 1975 data for maturity, lodging, plant height and seed size. Yields are shown for the past 3 years.

Ryder notes that entries in the Ohio Performance Trials are accepted if the seed will be available to Ohio farmers for the planting season following the trials. All 1975 entries were submitted voluntarily by 14 seed companies and the Ohio Seed Improvement Association.

Yields varied widely among the 66 entries in the 1975 trials. The top yield was 68.4 bushels per acre, while the low yield was 43.6. Because of more favorable weather conditions, yields were considerably better than the 22.9 to 37.2 bushels per acre in 1974.

Cooperating with Ryder in making the report were James E. Beuerlein, area Extension agent, Mt. Gilead, and A. F. Schmitthener, professor at OARDC.

And So It Grows

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture
Forcing T. igs

You can bring an early spring into the house and brighten up dull spots with some colorful flowering twigs from spring flowering shrubs or trees. Remember, however, these twigs have been at freezing temperatures or below, so soak cut stems in cool water for several hours. Totally immerse twigs in water. After soaking, place twigs in a decorative container and add warm water (180 degrees F) about 2 to 3 inches up on stem — no higher. In about one-half hour, add additional water to desired level. Keep the container in a cool (55 to 65 degree F), shaded, draft-free place until buds start to show color. Then, move container to a more lighted area, and keep it filled with water.

Forced leaves and flowers are more delicate than those which open outdoors, so keep them cool.

Some plants will force in 1 to 2 weeks, others take longer.

Animals Gnow Plants

With winter in full force and snow and ice hiding animal food, many rodents turn to bark on trees and shrubs, particularly young fruit trees. Check for signs of animals gnawing near the base or for squirrel and deer nibbling at the tips.

Hardware cloth placed around the base of plants helps protect them against small animals gnawing bark at the base of the tree. For deer nibbling at tips of branches, it is suggested you try hanging a creosote oil soaked doll in fruit orchards at deer browsing height. This has given some control of nibbling.

House Plant Problems

Over-watering is the major house plant problem. You can always add water to a dry plant, but you can't remove water from one that has wet soil. Try waiting until the soil is dry to the touch, the pot is light when lifted, and the plant just starts to show signs of wilt. Then it needs water but not before.

Drooping leaves can be caused by sudden changes in temperature and lack of light. Try to keep your house plants out of drafts and where they receive the most natural daylight. Plants do better in homes kept on the cool side. Temperatures above 70 degrees are not best for most house plants.

Panel Recommends Stronger USDA Voice In Farm Safety

The National Advisory Committee on Safety in Agriculture met recently in Washington, D. C., to formulate agricultural positions in the early development stages of safety standards that effect agriculture workers. The Committee urged that USDA become an advocate for such positions and standards.

Washington's ASCS representative John A. McTarnaghan said: "They stressed that before these standards are issued by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), that the need for a standard should be clearly documented by adequate research as a first step." Evidence should indicate that the standard will significantly reduce work hazards; the benefits of a new safety standard should exceed the cost of developing and applying the standard; and the standard should be backed up by an adequate educational effort and provide incentive to both workers and employers to accept and apply it, McTarnaghan added.

Other highlights of the Committee's recommendations include a call for a field survey by the USDA of farmers and workers to determine their understanding of the OSHA regulations requiring rollover protection structures for farm tractors.

"The Committee also called for studies of the economic impact of increasing government regulation on agricultural producers," McTarnaghan said. Some members noted that increasing regulation and legal liabilities were causing farmers to step up mechanization and thereby reduce jobs for workers.

McTarnaghan said the Committee requested the Secretary of Agriculture to assign priority to the analysis of National Safety Council farm accident safety data so that attention can be focused on the most serious problem areas.

The National Advisory Committee on Safety in Agriculture is responsible for advising the Secretary of Agriculture and other officials of the Department of Agricultural Safety Policy and Programs.

And So It Grows

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture
Forcing T. Igs

You can bring an early spring into the house and brighten up dull spots with some colorful flowering twigs from spring flowering shrubs or trees.

Remember, however, these twigs have been at freezing temperatures or below, so soak cut stems in cool water for several hours. Totally immerse twigs in water. After soaking, place twigs in a decorative container and add warm water (180 degrees F) about 2 to 3 inches up on stem — no higher. In about one-half hour, add additional water to desired level. Keep the container in a cool (55 to 65 degree F), shaded, draft-free place until buds start to show color. Then, move container to a more lighted area, and keep it filled with water.

Forced leaves and flowers are more delicate than those which open outdoors, so keep them cool.

Some plants will force in 1 to 2 weeks, others take longer.

Animals Gnaw Plants

With winter in full force and snow and ice hiding animal food, many rodents turn to bark on trees and shrubs, particularly young fruit trees. Check for signs of animals gnawing near the base or for squirrel and deer nibbling at the tips.

Hardware cloth placed around the base of plants helps protect them against small animals gnawing bark at the base of the tree. For deer nibbling at tips of branches, it is suggested you try hanging a creosote oil soaked doll in fruit orchards at deer browsing height. This has given some control of nibbling.

House Plant Problems

Over-watering is the major house plant problem. You can always add water to a dry plant, but you can't remove water from one that has wet soil. Try waiting until the soil is dry to the touch, the pot is light when lifted, and the plant just starts to show signs of wilt. Then it needs water but not before.

Drooping leaves can be caused by sudden changes in temperature and lack of light. Try to keep your house plants out of drafts and where they receive the most natural daylight. Plants do better in homes kept on the cool side. Temperatures above 70 degrees are not best for most house plants.

Hottle Is Appeals Court Candidate

JUDGE DARRELL HOTTE

Judge Darrell R. Hottle, Highland County, announced his candidacy for the vacancy on the 4th District Court of Appeals caused by the retirement of Judge Gordon B. Gray.

The District includes the counties of Adams, Athens, Brown, Gallia, Highland, Hocking, Jackson, Lawrence, Meigs, Pickaway, Pike, Ross, Scioto, Vinton and Washington.

Judge Hottle has begun his 22nd year on the Highland County Common Pleas Bench this month, having been assigned by the Ohio Chief Justice to 25 other counties, including metropolitan and 12 of the 15 counties in the 4th District and to the 1st and 2nd District Court of Appeals.

He served four years as Prosecuting Attorney, Highland County, along with a year as Solicitor of Hillsboro before election to the Bench.

"It has been an honor to serve in public capacities for 26 years, and I would consider it a high privilege to utilize this experience for the 4th Appellate District Court", Judge Hottle said.

Born and reared on a Highland County farm, Judge Hottle graduated from Hillsboro Schools, Ohio State University, and Western Reserve Law School. He and his wife Catherine, an R.N. have two children, one teaching school and one in graduate school.

B. and Red Cross Chapters, along with many other community activities.

Panel Recommends Stronger USDA Voice In Farm Safety

The National Advisory Committee on Safety in Agriculture met recently in Washington, D. C., to formulate agricultural positions in the early development stages of safety standards that effect agriculture workers. The Committee urged that USDA become an advocate for such positions and standards.

Washington's ASCS representative John A. McTarnaghan said: "They stressed that before these standards are issued by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), that the need for a standard should be clearly documented by adequate research as a first step." Evidence should indicate that the standard will significantly reduce work hazards; the benefits of a new safety standard should exceed the cost of developing and applying the standard; and the standard should be backed up by an adequate educational effort and provide incentive to both workers and employers to accept and apply it, McTarnaghan added.

Other highlights of the Committee's recommendations include a call for a field survey by the USDA of farmers and workers to determine their understanding of the OSHA regulations requiring rollover protection structures for farm tractors.

"The Committee also called for studies of the economic impact of increasing government regulation on agricultural producers," McTarnaghan said. Some members noted that increasing regulation and legal liabilities were causing farmers to step up mechanization and thereby reduce jobs for workers.

McTarnaghan said the Committee requested the Secretary of Agriculture to assign priority to the analysis of National Safety Council farm accident safety data so that attention can be focused on the most serious problem areas.

The National Advisory Committee on Safety in Agriculture is responsible for advising the Secretary of Agriculture and other officials of the Department of Agricultural Safety Policy and Programs.

A Page Of Opinion

Kissinger In Dream World

Henry Kissinger is apparently living in a dream world when he lashes out at presidential hopefuls for criticism of American foreign policy.

The secretary of state apparently feels his actions should not be questioned in public debate, and his policies should be inviolate.

Obviously, he is whistling into the teeth of a hurricane with this attitude, since one of the prime questions before the voters in any presidential year is what a candidate's foreign policy views might be.

Indeed, it would be bad if candidates kept their mouths shut, as well as any other person who disagrees with the direction of foreign policy.

Perhaps Kissinger should remember that he is not Metternich, living in a world where the elite made the policy and the common herd did not need to be informed.

Ohio Bell Chief Sees Money Need

CLEVELAND (AP) — The president of Ohio Bell Telephone Co., Charles E. Hugel, says the possibility of a cutback in services and layoffs of employees looms in 1976 for the state's largest utility unless it can come up with more operating capital.

Calling the company's 1975 earnings "terrible," Hugel told a news conference here Thursday, "If we cannot raise money for our capital construction program we will not be able to provide good service. Our customers should be aware of this."

He mentioned possible layoffs, but declined to discuss such a situation, adding that discussions would not be fair to employees who might be affected. He noted Ohio Bell currently is reducing its work force by attrition.

Hugel said the company's planned capital spending program of $300 million this year cannot go on on schedule unless the company gets funds from the investment community, but added the lack of adequate earnings is a severe handicap to attracting such investment money.

The company had net income of $62.2

million on revenues of $870 million in 1975, compared with income of $80.8 million on revenues of nearly $830.4 million the previous year.

"While $62 million sound like a lot of money, it's shocking to know that it's less than we earned in 1966, when we had $1 billion invested in equipment to serve customers. That compares with $2.5 billion today," he explained.

"As a matter of fact, investors can earn more through deposits in a savings account than with the telephone company," he noted sadly.

Hugel said the company's application for a $216 million rate increase, which has just reached the hearing stage, has been pending before the utilities commission for nearly 15 months.

"Our present rates are based on our costs of doing business in 1971," he explained. "Since that time, the cost of living has gone up 34 per cent, but that is not shown in our current rates. The cost of doing business reflected in our pending rate application is even more than two years old now."

Hugel said legislation pending in the Ohio legislature would change the way Ohio utility rates are based on "anti-consumer legislation." He said consumers have been told the bill would benefit them, but Hugel said it would be detrimental to both the utilities and the consumers.

Jobless Claims Rise

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Initial claims for unemployment benefits in the state increased for the second consecutive week at the beginning of the month, the Bureau of Employment Services said Thursday.

The bureau said 22,580 persons made applications for unemployment under state and federal programs for the week ending Feb. 7. That compares to 21,439 for the week ending Jan. 31.

Layoffs in the steel, automotive and construction industries resulted in a 5.4 per cent increase in initial unemployment benefit claims last week in Ohio, compared with the previous week, the OBES reported.

In February 1975, initial claims for an average week were 37,169.

At the beginning of the year, unemployment in Ohio was 7.8 per cent.

Continuing claims resumed its up-and-down trend for the week ending Jan. 31 with 167,884 receiving benefits for one week or more. In the previous week, 165,406 obtained unemployment insurance and the previous year, 252,559.

The bodies of Conrad L. Collins and his wife Ellen, both in their 50s, were found with shotgun wounds in the head, authorities said. Deputies had no suspects.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, Feb. 14, the 45th day of 1976. There are 321 days left in the year. This is Valentine's Day.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1663, Canada became a royal province of France.

On this date: In 1859, Oregon was admitted to the Union as the 33rd state.

In 1893, Hawaii was annexed by treaty to the United States.

In 1912, Arizona became the 48th state.

In 1929, seven gangsters who were rivals of the Al Capone gang in Chicago were murdered in a garage. The killings became known as the St. Valentine's Day massacre.

In 1960, Ayub Khan was elected President of Pakistan.

In 1969, Peruvian torpedo boats fired on United States tuna boats fishing 26 miles off Peru.

Ten years ago: The death toll rose to 19 in the Dominican Republic during sniping and grenade attacks.

Five years ago: U.S. planes mistakenly attacked an American CIA base in Laos, causing heavy damage.

One year ago: Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev attacked U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's step-by-step program to bring about Middle East peace and called for a speedy resumption of the Geneva Peace Conference.

Today's birthdays: Woman golfer Mickey Wright is 41. TV personality Hugh Downs is 55.

Thought for today: The love we give away is the only love we keep — Elbert Hubbard, American writer, 1856-1919.

Bicentennial footnote: Two-hundred years ago today, a British army clerk in besieged Boston reported that 12 companies of British troops had made a crossing on ice to Dorchester Hill, set fire to a number of houses and captured six American soldiers without firing a shot.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE: While The Herald encourages open comments from its readers, the opinions expressed are not necessarily those of the management. Letters to the editor must be signed and should be of 300 words or less.

Dear Editor:

We, the Central Ohio Chapter-March of Dimes, wish to extend our sincere appreciation for the coverage given the 1976 Mothers' March on Birth Defects.

Thanks also goes to everyone who contributed to the march and especially those individuals that took the time to collect door-to-door.

The support displayed makes the fight against birth defects possible. It enables the continuance and expansion of medical services such as genetic counseling and professional and public health education. It furthers basic and clinical research and enables the availability of starter grants for promising young scientists. All this brings the goal, the prevention of birth defects, closer.

Again, our thanks.

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

More than a quarter of a million Americans are said to fall into sudden attacks of uncontrollable sleep.

Complete relaxation, and even muscle paralysis, associated with this overwhelming sleepiness is known as "narcolepsy."

Although much is known about this strange phenomenon, there still are many holes in the puzzle.

Dr. William C. Dement, head of the Clinic for Sleep Disorders at Stanford University in Palo Alto, California, has found that narcolepsy occurs in animals, too.

Dr. Dement believes that these dog studies may open new horizons for knowledge of this puzzling sleep disorder.

A new drug, cholestyramine, is being used at the University of Chicago to reverse the process of arteriosclerosis.

Dr. Robert Wissler and his co-workers report that this drug is most effective when used in addition to a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet.

This scientific study is being performed with monkeys. In these animals there was a distinct decrease in the narrowing of the arteries to the heart, to the lungs and to the brain.

This drug, when used with the low-fat, low-cholesterol diet, shows such dramatic results that it is hoped that duplication of these results in humans will soon follow.

A number of patients who had angina pain around the heart were treated surgically by a vein-grafting technique.

Dr. Cary J. Lambert, of the Baylor University Medical Center in Houston, treated more than 60 such patients by means of the "bypass" operation.

These patients were treated in this way although there had not been a coronary artery closure.

The severe, persistent angina pain is an index of the condition of the coronary arteries. Preventative surgery returned many of these patients to productive lives completely free of symptoms.

Corporate Payoff Probe Expanding To Include Boeing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even as the waves from an international bribery scandal involving Lockheed Aircraft spread across the globe, the government has disclosed it is investigating whether the Boeing Co. engaged in similar activities.

The Securities and Exchange Commission said Thursday that Boeing "may have made illegal payments to certain foreign government officials in connection with Boeing's foreign operations."

A spokesman for Boeing said in Seattle that the company denies any wrongdoing either in this country or abroad.

Lockheed's board of directors scheduled a meeting today in Los Angeles for discussion of disclosures of international payoffs by the firm. There were reports that two top company executives would resign.

Meanwhile, a business research group said Thursday that about 75 per cent of American companies it surveyed reported pressures to make payoffs to foreign government officials, customers and others.

The Conference Board, an independent nonprofit business research organization, said its study was made of 73 top level executives of representative business firms.

"Cited as the most commonly requested payments are kickbacks and other payoffs to customers and bribes to government officials to overcome red tape," the report said. It said the practice is most widespread in Latin America and the Middle East, with the Far East and Africa "not far behind."

The SEC said in documents filed in U.S. District Court here that Boeing and its president, M.T. Stamper, have declined to turn over information subpoenaed for the probe of possible company payoffs.

The firm asked a U.S. District Court in Seattle for an order to protect its records. The company said it fears the information might be released by the SEC to third parties. Boeing said the information is proprietary and must be protected from needless disclosure.

Judge Thomas A. Flannery ordered Boeing to appear on Feb. 20 to show cause why it has not complied with the SEC subpoena.

Lockheed and one other major aerospace company, Northrop Corp., already have admitted to making millions of dollars in payments to foreign officials and financial statements to the SEC and the public.

Foreign payments are not, in themselves, illegal in this country but failure to mention them in financial statements is unlawful, the SEC says. Domestic political contributions by corporations are illegal.

The Japanese Foreign Ministry said in Tokyo it wants the U.S. government to provide the names of Japanese officials who allegedly received Lockheed payoffs. The firm's payoffs in Japan alone are said to total about $12 million.

A former lawyer for Lockheed in Zurich, Hubert Weisbrod, said he would cooperate fully with a Dutch government investigation into an alleged payment of $1 million to Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands.

Weisbrod said he made payments for Lockheed into Swiss bank accounts upon orders of the company but that he didn't know how the money was used.

The Hubbard Homestead in Ashtabula, Ohio, now a community house, in pre-Civil War days was a station on the Underground Railroad for escaped slaves.

"1976 is the 125th birthday of America's YMCA, Hewitt said, and the Y will be celebrating with special programs throughout the year both in honor of its own anniversary and in honor of our nation's bicentennial."

"America has changed dramatically since the first YMCA was launched in Boston, Massachusetts in 1851, he pointed out. "Just two years before, gold had been discovered in California. Much of the vast territory west of the Mississippi had yet to be carved into states. The Civil War was still a decade away."

As the country and its needs have changed, so, too, have the programs of the YMCA. Today the Y, with well over nine million participants across the United States, is putting much of its resources into programs that tackle needs and opportunities not even considered in 1851.

Hewitt cited several national Y programs that are breaking new ground for the Y. "With coronary-related diseases ranked as the nation's number one killer," he pointed out, "the Y has launched a nationwide cardiovascular program which, it believes, will substantially cut into the number of coronary deaths."

The new program calls for setting up a nationwide network of cardiovascular health and heart rehabilitation centers to serve 8,000,000 Americans by 1980.

Red Cross Lists Financial Report

American Red Cross expenditures totaled $237,266,807 in fiscal 1974-75, a period in which the organization dealt with a myriad of problems ranging from assistance to Southeast Asian refugees to help for disaster victims, the aged, handicapped and unemployed.

In its just-released annual report, the Red Cross stated its total income as $248,695,417. Public support in contributions accounted for $140,781,918 of this amount and the balance attributed to government grants, hospital reimbursements, and earned income from endowment and other funds.

A breakdown of expenditures shows the Red Cross Blood Program, the nation's largest voluntary donor program, cost $100,281,991. Because of hospital reimbursements, however, the program was largely self-supporting, the report states. In their joint message to the American people, Red Cross Chairman Frank Stanton and President George Elsey pointed out, "while there is no charge for the blood itself, the reimbursements cover basic expenditures for collecting, processing and distributing blood."

The report says blood collected during the period jumped 12.1 per cent over the previous year to 4,291,519 units. Donors giving blood through the Red Cross and recruited for other organizations increased 11.4 per cent to 4,262,356 persons.

The report also showed that even in a relatively peaceful period, Red Cross services to members of the armed forces, veterans and their families amounted to $52,691,544. This help included loans and grants, counseling with personal and family problems, and emergency communications.

Red Cross expertise was provided to the U.S. government in the reser-

Appeals Court Affirms Lower Court Decision

The Fourth District Court of Appeals recently handed down a decision on an appeal of a case heard in Pickaway County Juvenile Court. Mark Anthony Lutz, represented by Roy Huffer, appealed the lower court's decision in a case convicting him of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence, driving while under suspension and violation of probation.

Juvenile Judge Guy G. Cline found Lutz guilty of all charges and passed sentence. Huffer raised four errors in his appeal including the blood alcohol test and the venue.

The appeals court justices, Gordon Gray, Homer Abele and Earl Stephenson, concurred in their affirmation of the decision.

Representing the state of Ohio in the proceedings was county prosecutor Richard Gerhardt.

"With youth crime statistics growing rapidly, YMCAs in many urban areas are pioneering juvenile justice programs, often in cooperation with other agencies, that are reaching increasing numbers of troubled young people," the director said.

With the disintegration of family an all too frequent phenomenon of modern life, the YMCA is also increasing its emphasis on family programming, whether it be through special programs designed to improve family communications or through family memberships at the Y.

"Family memberships, in fact, are among the fastest growing categories in the YMCA today," he said. "Family memberships across the U.S. rose to 1.2 million in 1974, a 127 per cent increase in the past ten years."

"Finally, Hewitt said, "with the weapons of total destruction still casting a shadow over the entire world, the YMCAs of America, working with YMCAs around the world, have made the building of international understanding and world peace a major goal."

Hewitt urged everyone to visit the YMCA during its 125th birthday party to find out "what your YMCA can do for you and what you can do for your YMCA."

"We think everyone may be surprised to find out just what is going on in the YMCA in Circleville, across the country, and around the world."

tlement program for more than 130,000 Southeast Asian refugees who sought refuge in this country and elsewhere. Red Cross volunteers and staff assisted at refugee centers in Guam, on Wake Island, in California, Arkansas and Pennsylvania. In addition, help also was given at transit points where refugees needed help while traveling to join sponsors and in hundreds of communities where they finally settled.

Expenditures for disaster preparedness and relief came to $21,990,323. There were 31,991 operations involving more than five families requiring food, clothing, shelter and longer-term aid. Other expenses include $16,898,389 for community health and safety programs that provide training in home health and safety care, preparation for parenthood, first aid, small craft safety and accident prevention; $5,299,471 for youth service programs; and $1,323,889 for international services.

In reviewing the year, Stanton and Elsey stated, "In spite of the perplexities of inflation and recession, the Red Cross maintained its regular programs at full strength, adapting them to the ever-changing pattern of local and national problems. Chapters across the nation found ingenious and innovative ways to expand their programs to meet human needs. This flexibility is our guarantee that in the years ahead we will continue to provide the services that the American people have come to expect of their Red Cross in good times and bad."

"1976 is the 125th birthday of America's YMCA, Hewitt said, and the Y will be celebrating with special programs throughout the year both in honor of its own anniversary and in honor of our nation's bicentennial."

"America has changed dramatically since the first YMCA was launched in Boston, Massachusetts in 1851, he pointed out. "Just two years before, gold had been discovered in California. Much of the vast territory west of the Mississippi had yet to be carved into states. The Civil War was still a decade away."

As the country and its needs have changed, so, too, have the programs of the YMCA. Today the Y, with well over nine million participants across the United States, is putting much of its resources into programs that tackle needs and opportunities not even considered in 1851.

Hewitt cited several national Y programs that are breaking new ground for the Y. "With coronary-related diseases ranked as the nation's number one killer," he pointed out, "the Y has launched a nationwide cardiovascular program which, it believes, will substantially cut into the number of coronary deaths."

The new program calls for setting up a nationwide network of cardiovascular health and heart rehabilitation centers to serve 8,000,000 Americans by 1980.

Red Cross Lists Financial Report

American Red Cross expenditures totaled $237,266,807 in fiscal 1974-75, a period in which the organization dealt with a myriad of problems ranging from assistance to Southeast Asian refugees to help for disaster victims, the aged, handicapped and unemployed.

In its just-released annual report, the Red Cross stated its total income as $248,695,417. Public support in contributions accounted for $140,781,918 of this amount and the balance attributed to government grants, hospital reimbursements, and earned income from endowment and other funds.

A breakdown of expenditures shows the Red Cross Blood Program, the nation's largest voluntary donor program, cost $100,281,991. Because of hospital reimbursements, however, the program was largely self-supporting, the report states. In their joint message to the American people, Red Cross Chairman Frank Stanton and President George Elsey pointed out, "while there is no charge for the blood itself, the reimbursements cover basic expenditures for collecting, processing and distributing blood."

The report says blood collected during the period jumped 12.1 per cent over the previous year to 4,291,519 units. Donors giving blood through the Red Cross and recruited for other organizations increased 11.4 per cent to 4,262,356 persons.

The report also showed that even in a relatively peaceful period, Red Cross services to members of the armed forces, veterans and their families amounted to $52,691,544. This help included loans and grants, counseling with personal and family problems, and emergency communications.

Red Cross expertise was provided to the U.S. government in the reser-

Appeals Court Affirms Lower Court Decision

The Fourth District Court of Appeals recently handed down a decision on an appeal of a case heard in Pickaway County Juvenile Court. Mark Anthony Lutz, represented by Roy Huffer, appealed the lower court's decision in a case convicting him of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence, driving while under suspension and violation of probation. Juvenile Judge Guy G. Cline found Lutz guilty of all charges and passed sentence. Huffer raised four errors in his appeal including the blood alcohol test and the venue.

The appeals court justices, Gordon Gray, Homer Abele and Earl Stephenson, concurred in their affirmation of the decision.

Representing the state of Ohio in the proceedings was county prosecutor Richard Gerhardt.

"With youth crime statistics growing rapidly, YMCAs in many urban areas are pioneering juvenile justice programs, often in cooperation with other agencies, that are reaching increasing numbers of troubled young people," the director said.

With the disintegration of family an all too frequent phenomenon of modern life, the YMCA is also increasing its emphasis on family programming, whether it be through special programs designed to improve family communications or through family memberships at the Y.

"Family memberships, in fact, are among the fastest growing categories in the YMCA today," he said. "Family memberships across the U.S. rose to 1.2 million in 1974, a 127 per cent increase in the past ten years."

"Finally, Hewitt said, "with the weapons of total destruction still casting a shadow over the entire world, the YMCAs of America, working with YMCAs around the world, have made the building of international understanding and world peace a major goal."

Hewitt urged everyone to visit the YMCA during its 125th birthday party to find out "what your YMCA can do for you and what you can do for your YMCA."

"We think everyone may be surprised to find out just what is going on in the YMCA in Circleville, across the country, and around the world."

tlement program for more than 130,000 Southeast Asian refugees who sought refuge in this country and elsewhere. Red Cross volunteers and staff assisted at refugee centers in Guam, on Wake Island, in California, Arkansas and Pennsylvania. In addition, help also was given at transit points where refugees needed help while traveling to join sponsors and in hundreds of communities where they finally settled.

Expenditures for disaster preparedness and relief came to $21,990,323. There were 31,991 operations involving more than five families requiring food, clothing, shelter and longer-term aid. Other expenses include $16,898,389 for community health and safety programs that provide training in home health and safety care, preparation for parenthood, first aid, small craft safety and accident prevention; $5,299,471 for youth service programs; and $1,323,889 for international services.

In reviewing the year, Stanton and Elsey stated, "In spite of the perplexities of inflation and recession, the Red Cross maintained its regular programs at full strength, adapting them to the ever-changing pattern of local and national problems. Chapters across the nation found ingenious and innovative ways to expand their programs to meet human needs. This flexibility is our guarantee that in the years ahead we will continue to provide the services that the American people have come to expect of their Red Cross in good times and bad."

TV Presents Wind Ensemble Concert

On Feb. 5, the Teays Valley Music Department presented a wind ensemble concert. Those participating were: the TV Wind Ensemble and the TV Brass Sextet. Special music was provided by the North Olmsted Senior High Wind Ensemble.

All three groups created a very good performance. Due to the icy road conditions the attendance was slightly low. In fact, the two Teays Valley groups had a few participants absent. But the other students were able to make a few quick changes and the fact that some were missing did not lessen the group's ability.

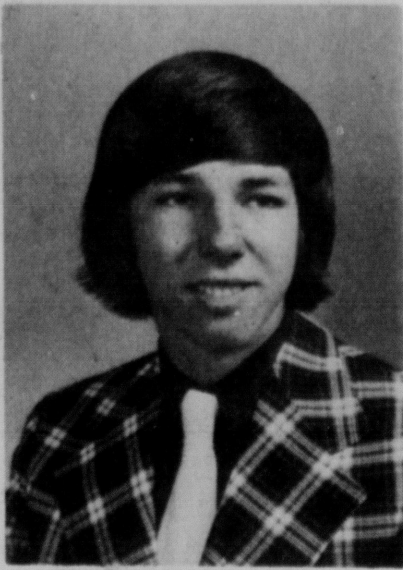

Band director Duanne Corbett filled in for the trumpet section. Those participating in the brass sextet were: Miki Brown, Dorinda Brown (Mr. Corbett took her place because of the bad weather), Becky Peters, Larry Pruitt, Brad Sherman, and Mark Noecker.

C. B. Kriebbaum Jr., directed the 60 members of the North Olmsted Senior High Wind Ensemble. The next day, the ensemble was going to perform at the Ohio Music Educators Association in Columbus. The spirited and talented group has also performed at the Music Educators National Conference, and at the Mid-West National Band and Orchestra Clinic.

The guest director performing with the North Olmsted band was Dr. James Nielson. He is the Director of the National Department of the G. Leblanc Corporation, is responsible for writing, editing and supervising the preparation of all educational and recruiting aids published by Leblanc. He is a Leblanc staff conductor in all fields, choral as well as band and orchestra. He has been guest conductor of many famous bands, including the U.S. Navy Band, the Air Force Band, and many outstanding university and high school bands.

Fred Brobst, Teays Valley band director, was very excited by the performance and he concluded by saying, "I think that Teays Valley performed excellently and in my opinion the North Olmsted band is one of the finest in the state of Ohio."

Mrs. Cookson Celebrates 14 Years At Teays Valley

This is Helen Cookson's 14th year of teaching at Teays Valley High School. She began teaching at Walnut Township High School, then taught at Ashville High School. These schools are now a part of Teays Valley. Mrs. Cookson says "For the past several years I have enjoyed teaching children of previous students, and I am now waiting for some of their grandchildren!"

HELEN COOKSON

She graduated from Capital University in Columbus; starting in the two-year secretarial program and the switching to education. The summer after graduating from high school, she worked for the Department of Taxation for the State of Ohio. She worked there for 12 summers. "This experience of working in an office helped me in teaching."

When asked why she became a teacher she replied, "I was probably influenced to become a teacher as my parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Irwin, were both teachers. One of my brothers has taught as well as an aunt and a cousin."

Mrs. Cookson teaches typing I and personal typing this year, both of which she enjoys very much. The students are interested, are working, and are doing very well. "One large difference between now and when I began to teach is that most teachers are specializing in one area whereas my first year at Walnut I taught typing I (two classes), typing II, shorthand I, shorthand II, bookkeeping I, seventh grade geography, and had a study hall. In addition I sold tickets at home basketball games, was the junior class advisor, directed the junior class play, and was the advisor for the junior-senior prom."

This dedicated and spirited teacher and her husband, Charles, both enjoy sports events and attend many games during the year. "I have always enjoyed school activities," she concludes.

O-I Declares Dividend

TOLEDO — The board of directors of Owens-Illinois, Inc., today increased the quarterly dividend from 43 cents to 47 cents a common share — a 9.3 per cent increase on an annual basis.

The increase — in excess of last year's rate of inflation — is the fifth consecutive year in which the company's dividend on common shares has been increased, Edwin D. Dodd, president and chief executive officer, said.

The dividend is payable March 15 to shareholders of record Feb. 23. The dividend was last increased in Feb., 1975. In the past five years, the dividend on common shares has been increased 39 per cent.

Owens-Illinois recently reported records in sales, earnings, and earnings per share for the fourth consecutive year.

Sales for 1975 totaled $2,273,173,000, an increase of 7.4 per cent over 1974. Net income increased 4.9 per cent on a per share basis to a record $87,336,000, or $6.02 per share, compared with $83,472,000, or $5.74 per share the previous year.

In today's meeting, the board also declared a dividend of $1.00 per 4 per cent Cumulative Preferred share, payable April 1 to shareholders of record Feb. 27; and $1.18-3/4 for each $4.75 Cumulative Convertible Preference share, payable April 1 to shareholders of record Feb. 23.

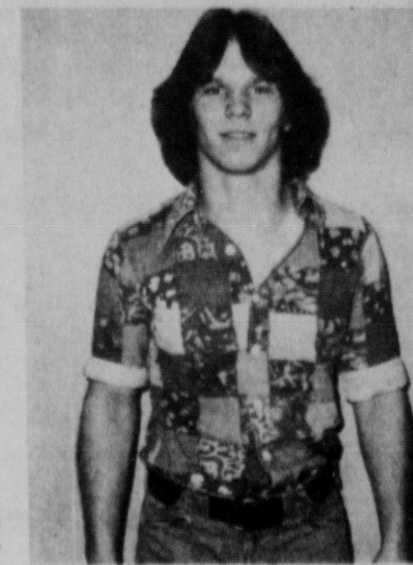

Owens-Illinois has paid dividends quarterly, without interruption, since 1907.

Owens-Illinois is the 87th largest industrial company in the U.S. and a major producer of glass, paper, and plastic packaging products.

Kenny Orr Is Featured Wrestler

KENNY ORR

Kenny Orr, senior, is this week's featured wrestler. His current record is 18-2.

This is Kenny's sixth year of wrestling. He became interested in the sport because his older brothers were in it. "I like this game because it's very competitive and individualized." He previously went to Hamilton until this year. "TVHS is the best team that I have wrestled for. Floyd Gray is a good coach and friend."

While wrestling is quickly becoming a well appreciated and well followed sport at Teays Valley, Kenny thinks that we need more people backing up the team. The mats stats deserve a lot of credit for arousing school spirit. Kenny thinks the whole system would be complete if a pep club could be formed.

Some of the toughest wrestlers that Orr has competed with include Jim Shea from Ready and Andy DeSaibato from Desales.

His hobbies include hunting, fishing, and dating girls. After graduation Kenny would like to go to Ohio State University if possible.

MUSCLE AND HUSTLE — Circleville's Biff Bumgarner shows why he is one of the outstanding players in the South Central Ohio League as he goes up for two points, despite the effort of three Madison Plains players to stop him. The Golden Eagles grabbed 19 defensive rebounds but only managed to haul in five missed shots from the offensive boards.

In the turnover department, Circleville committed 15 while Madison Plains misplayed the ball 20 times.

"It is a thrill to win the South Central Ohio League championship but it is an even greater thrill to watch our young men play as hard as they did tonight," Circleville coach Jim Bailey commented. "We had total hustle from all 12 Tigers and I am certainly proud of all of them."

It started out like it might be a bad night all the way around as Wilson hit two buckets from the corner in the first 30 seconds to send the Eagles soaring to a 4-0 lead.

But, as it turned out, this was their only lead in the game as the Tigers began to clip the wings of the Eagle and bring him back to earth.

Merrill and Moore each hit a basket to knot the count and then Merrill rammed one home on a driving layup at 5:42. Now the Tigers were out in front and the Eagles spent the rest of the evening trying to catch the cats tail.

McCoy picked up the pace and got into the race as he hit three quick two-pointers and when the buzzer sounded the Tigers were on top 20-10.

The second canto was a fairly even battle with Bumgarner getting nine of the Tigers 11 points and Timmons picking up eight for the Eagles as the Red and Black held a 31-22 edge at halftime.

Circleville began to show a little more daylight in the third period and after Madison Plains converted two foul shots to cut the score to 41-30 with 2:09 left in the stanza, Circleville went into a stall against the stubborn Eagle zone defense and held the ball until McCoy was fouled with seven seconds left in the frame.

The awards were made at the Circleville-Madison Plains basketball game Friday night at Mill St. gym. From the left, Larry Cook, Circleville stepped to the charity stripe and rang the bell twice to put the Tigers out in front 43-30 as the period ended.

Moore and Bumgarner hit from all angles as the Red and Black open the lead to 57-32 at the 3:47 mark.

At this point, coach Bailey went to his bench and the starters were given standing ovations by an enthusiastic crowd who were using this method to

CHS Reserves Nipped By Eagles, 45-39

Circleville's reserves ran into a little trouble in the final quarter and never could recover as they dropped a 45-39 game to Madison Plains Friday night at Mill St. gym.

The Tigers trailed 11-10 at the end of the first canto but were tied 21-21 at halftime. They fell behind 35-33 at the third period buzzer and the Eagles managed to spread the gap in the final frame and the Tigers couldn't quite catch up.

Mark Albright and Toren Bensonhaver both had 12 points to lead Circleville, Mike Brudzinski added six, Mike Edgington tallied five and Tim Milstead had four.

Grant Bartee paced the Eagles with 13 markers, Allen Webb and Tom Richardson each had 11, Scott Willis hit eight and Tim Smith had two. Circleville will be at Washington C. H. Friday night.

Mike McFarland of the University of Chicago Track Club, the world record holder at 70 yards; Reggie Jones of Tennessee and former Auburn star Cliff Outlin will offer a strong challenge to Crockett. Meet officials said Dr. Delano Merriwether withdrew because of a pulled tendon.

Entered in the pole vault are Dave Roberts of Florida, Dan Ripley of California and Kjell Isaksson of Sweden, all of them having cleared 18 feet several times.

Westfall Mustangs Overpower Southeastern Cagers, 83-52

COME BACK — Bill Hamman (22) momentarily loses control of the ball while running down the sideline is Chris Riddle (42).

By TOM SPRING
Herald Sports writer

Westfall avenged an earlier loss to Southeastern Friday night and did it in high fashion as they ran over the visitors 83-52 in Scioto Valley Conference cage play.

According to Mustang coach Mike Eckle, Westfall had to run and beat the press in order to beat the Panthers. The Mustangs did just that, limiting Southeastern to a measly three field goals per quarter in the second half. Westfall outscored their opponents in the final two quarters, 49-29.

Another decisive factor in the game was rebounds, as Westfall pulled the ball down 44 times enabling the cagers to take more shots and convert them into points.

The Mustangs trailed only once, for fifteen seconds in the first frame. Kevin Reid and Chris Riddle led the Mustang attack hitting the nets for eight points apiece as Westfall took a 21-12 lead.

The second quarter was pretty even, as Westfall only upped the margin by two, with Reid hitting for five.

When the opponents began to assert themselves, senior floor captain Bill Hamman switched the team from man-to-man defense to a zone forcing a turnover and giving the Mustangs another score. They took a 34-23 lead.

But the Mustangs really poured it on in the third quarter, hitting well from outside as Hamman, Riddle and Terry Hanson began hitting successively from the corners. Riddle scored ten points and Westfall took a 52-31 lead at the buzzer.

In the final period, Coach Eckle put in his subs who at one point scored eight points within 55 seconds. Nine players took turns lighting the scoreboard as the entire team put together a fine 83-52 victory.

Leading scorer in the game was Mustang senior forward Chris Riddle swishing the cords for seven goals and six free throws for 20 points. Kevin Reid also hit double figures scoring 15 as did Mack Dick with 11.

Bill Hamman sank eight, John Schleich netted seven, Bill Evans tallied five, Larry Bilek and John Long each hooped four, Neil Keller canned three while Jeff Karshner, Eric Schleich and Terry Hanson added two apiece.

Southeastern had two figures in double figures. Coy Prater and Rick Skaggs each put up ten markers. Jeff Schuler added six, John Bennett scored five, Mark Carroll, Rick Stevens and Todd Ward all had four, Sam Eldridge made three, Doug Estep, Rick Schrader and Craig Gray hooped two apiece.

Westfall sank 29 of 65 shots from the field for 44 per cent including a 54 per cent second half average. Southeastern found the rim 15 of 54 times for 27 per cent.

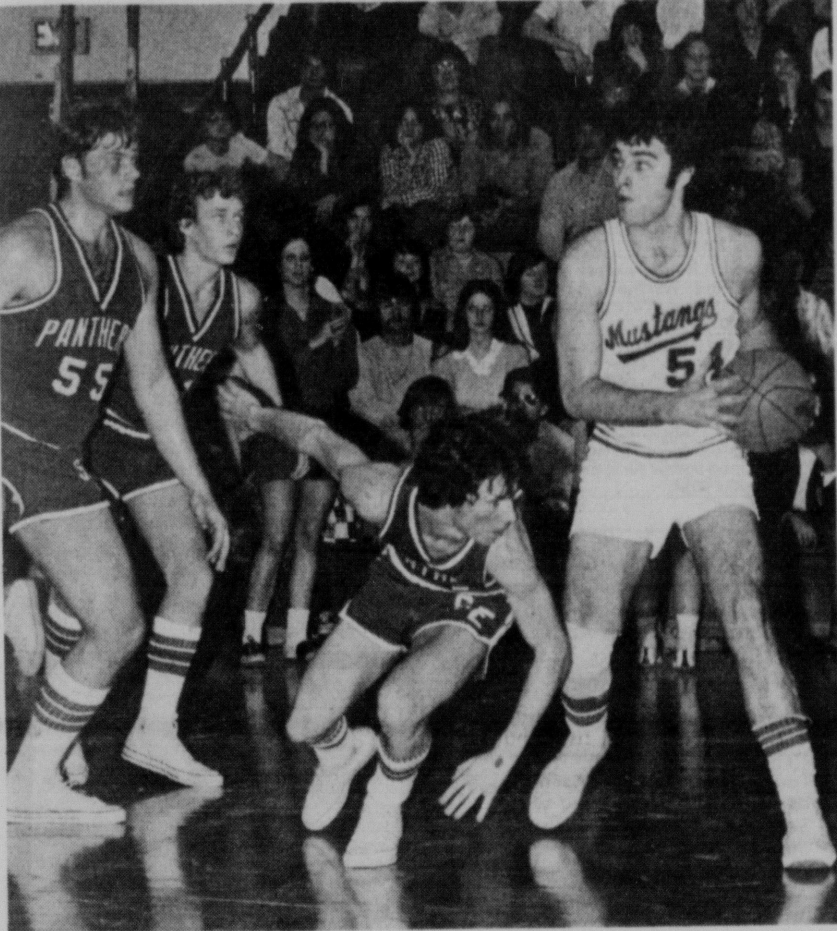

The Mustangs hit from the charity stripe on 25 of 36 occasions for 69.4 per cent shooting and the Panthers connected 22 of 33 times for 66.6 per cent.

Westfall brought down 44 rebounds compared to 23 for Southeastern. Reid had eight, Hamman, seven, Riddle, six and Hanson, five for the Mustangs.

Westfall had 18 turnovers, while Southeastern misplayed the ball 22 times.

Coach Eckle commented, "We got a great defense out of our starting team. When you hold Southeastern to 31 points in three quarters you did a good job."

David-Clem led the Mustangs with six, Randy Hartzell and Randy Darst hooped five, Shawn MacPherson netted four, Chuck Mettler had three, Mike Weidinger, Ted Everman and Jeff Mowery scored two apiece.

DEFENSE — Three Logan Elm Braves attempt to stop a fast breaking Tom Hinton during the Mid State League game with Amanda-Clearcreek Friday. They are Randy Pontius, Dave Dean and Chuck Cave. The Braves won, 77-67, and clinched at least a share of second place in the league. Fairfield Union defeated Canal Winchester Friday for a guaranteed share of the MSL cage title regardless of the outcome of the final night of action this coming Friday.

Logan Elm Downs Aces, 77-67

With four players scoring in double figures Logan Elm rolled to a 77-67 win over Amanda-Clearcreek Friday in Spangler Memorial Gymnasium.

It was the second straight win for the Braves after a two-game losing streak two weeks ago that saw them lose their top spot in the Mid State League to Fairfield Union who virtually clinched the title last night with a 56-47 win over Canal Winchester.

The big guns for the Braves in the victory over Amanda-Clearcreek were Chuck Cave, who scored a career high of 22 points, Jeff Reichelderfer with 21, Dave Dean who came off the bench to pitch in 12 points and Mike Miller who scored 10 in spite of being in foul trouble and on the bench most of the game.

Rounding out the LE scoring, Mark Skinner tallied four, Scott Allen three, Randy Pontius three and Lonnie Maxson two.

For the Aces, Russ Foster notched 14 and Cloyce Hartley 12.

The Braves scored the first two buckets of the game and never were behind although it was not until late in the fourth quarter they cemented their 12th victory in 17 starts this year and their 11th against two losses in the Mid State.

They led 22-15 at the end of the first period, 45-36 at halftime and 57-48 going into the final quarter. Cave and Miller were the leading rebounders for the Braves with seven each and Dean pulled down five missed shots as the Braves outrebounded the visiting Aces 30-20.

Reichelderfer, in addition to his 21 points, had six assists to lead the team in that department. Pontius had four assists according to LE chartkeepers.

The Braves connected on 26 of 69 shots from the field for a 42 per cent average. Amanda made 29 of 75 shots, a 39 per cent average.

From the foul line the Braves made 19 of 26 shots, a 73 per cent shooting average and the Aces converted only nine of 20, a 45 per cent average.

"We were pleased with our offense tonight but not especially pleased with the defense," coach Asa Bradbury said after the game.

"But give those kids from Amanda-Clearcreek a lot of credit. They have lost a lot but they haven't really been out of too many games. They play with a lot of desire."

Bradbury was especially pleased with his four players in double figures and with the floor play of Randy Pontius. "He (Pontius) is really developing into a good player, getting stronger and stronger every game," Bradbury said. "He has become a very good sixth man for us and even a possible starter."

"And Lonnie Maxson came off the bench and gave us a real good defensive job when we needed it. He is probably our best defensive player," the LE coach said.

Miller, the Braves 6-foot-5 center, picked up his third foul early in the first half, and his fourth right after the half so he saw much of the game from the bench. The Aces lost two of their starters, Doug Starnier and Mark Marshall, via the personal foul route.

The little Braves made a complete rout of the preliminary game, defeating the Aces 55-23. The Aces' reserve team had a 14-2 record going into the tilt.

For the LE reserve, Jeff Collins and Todd Young scored 11 each, Lynn Strehle ten, Tony Crist eight, Jerry Scanlon five, Mike Patrick four, Doug Woods three, Mark Martin two and Marlon Luckhart one. The Aces Ed Thompson had nine.

Next week the Braves close the regular season hosting Berne Union in Mid State competition. A win would give Logan Elm sole possession of second place in the league.

SUMMARY
LOGAN ELM — Cave, 9-4-22; Reichelderfer, 6-9-21; Miller, 4-2-10; Allen, 1-1-3; Pontius, 1-1-3; Skinner, 1-2-4; Maxson, 1-0-2; Dean, 6-0-12. Totals, 29-19-77.

Flyers Top Rangers In NHL, 5-3

By The Associated Press
Fred Shero has no intention of becoming the Wally Pipp of hockey, but it's nice to know that Mike Nykoluk and Barry Ashbee are waiting in the wings, anyway.

For the youngsters in the audience, Wally Pipp was a first baseman for the New York Yankees in the 1920s who decided he wasn't feeling well enough to play one day and was replaced by Lou Gehrig. They finally got Gehrig out of there 2,130 games in a row later.

Shero took a brief sabbatical from his coaching duties Friday night and watched from the press box as Nykoluk and Ashbee guided the Philadelphia Flyers to a 5-3 National Hockey League victory over the New York Rangers as Reggie Leach and Bill Barber scored two goals apiece.

Morley, Snead Lead San Diego Tourney

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Mike Morley, an obscure, longshot, career struggler from Minot, N.D., figured he was going to play a little better this year. But even he hadn't planned on this.

"Naturally, I'm a little surprised," Morley said in typical, low-key, understated fashion Friday after his eagle on the final hole had given him a share of the second round lead in the $180,000 Andy Williams San Diego Open Golf Tournament.

"I knew I'd play better—but I didn't know how much better."

Morley, tied with Snead at 11-under-par 33 halfway through this chase for a $36,000 first prize, generally has been overlooked in the early-season heroics of Ben Crenshaw and Johnny Miller, neither of whom is playing here. But Morley's play—in comparison with his previous career—has been remarkable.

With the season just getting started, he's finished second once, fourth once and had two other placings in the top 15. He's already won $38,000, compared with $41,000 for all of last season. And that was the best season of his seven-year career.

The turn-around came last year. "It looked like my game had gone as far as it could go," he said. "I figured I had to do something or get off the tour."

So he sought the advice and help of Joe Nichols, a Phoenix, Ariz., businessman who "hasn't played in 25 years," Morley said. "But he knows the game. He thinks he knows how the game should be played."

"He's the only man I've ever known who could put the game all in perspective for me—who could make me understand what it's all about."

"I was pretty confused. I had a lot of loose ends in my game. Now, it just seems to all be coming together."

Norway Wins Gold Medal For Ski Race

INNSBRUCK (AP) — Ivar Formo of Norway gave his country its third gold medal of the 12th Olympic Games, winning the 50-kilometer (31 miles) cross-country ski race today as a valiant effort by American Bil-Koch—the leader at the halfway mark—fell far short.

Formo covered the grueling distance in two hours 37 minutes 30.50 seconds while Gerd Dietmar Klaus of East Germany took the silver in 2:38:13.21 and Benny Soedergren of Sweden won the bronze in 2:39:39.21.

Meanwhile Koch, who had given the United States its first Nordic event medal ever with a second-place finish in the 30-kilometer cross-country race last week, raised hopes of another startling finish by moving up from fourth place at the 14.5-kilometer mark to first at the halfway point.

Those hopes faded quickly as Koch, of Guilford, Vt., tired in the second half of the race. After finishing far back in the field, Koch looked exhausted and glassy-eyed and had to be helped to his dressing room by two officials.

"I didn't think I was going to make it," said Koch, who was reported by a team doctor as apparently suffering from cerebral hypoxia—a shortage of blood flowing to the brain. The doctor said the 20-year-old Koch would recover within an hour and no serious effects were expected.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): What you seek may not be available NOW, but earnest trying will bring eventual reward. You can act effectively when you have the will.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): What attracts may not be really choice, and what you are tempted to brush aside may be the winner you are seeking. So... your best judgment needed.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Plans may have to be changed. Do Not become upset; many will be for the better. If asked for advice, give it, but don't press your opinions on others.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Beneficent influences stimulate your astuteness and your ability to "hold things together" — even groups of people.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Day starts out brightly, and you can keep it that way, if you will. Just be careful not to let irresponsible persons lead you into unproductive activities.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Personal relationships highly congenial. In fact, your career status may be boosted through an influential person.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Through good methods, integrity and following successful past procedures, you can put this day's efforts in the top echelon for rewards.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): What you seek may not be available NOW, but earnest trying will bring eventual reward. You can act effectively when you have the will.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): What attracts may not be really choice, and what you are tempted to brush aside may be the winner you are seeking. So... your best judgment needed.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Plans may have to be changed. Do Not become upset: many will be for the better. If asked for advice, give it, but don't press your opinions on others.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Beneficent influences stimulate your astuteness and your ability to "hold things together" — even groups of people.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Day starts out brightly, and you can keep it that way, if you will. Just be careful not to let irresponsible persons lead you into unproductive activities.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Personal relationships highly congenial. In fact, your career status may be boosted through an influential person.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Through good methods, integrity and following successful past procedures, you can put this day's efforts in the top echelon for rewards.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): If adaptability, imagination and energies are wisely directed, you and others whom you influence will draw readily on success patterns. This is no day for dawdling!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Certain obstacles in your path will call for either more concentrated effort on your part or a complete revision of plan if they are to be overcome.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Curb emotions and a tendency to go to extremes. Tighten reins on spending, but don't scrimp unwisely and lose out in the long run.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Your Uranus excellently positioned. Stretch your talents and abilities to cover some of the sparse areas in your field of attainment.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Not all things will come easily now and, as last week, you will have some important decisions to make. Make them carefully, however, and you will be in line for many benefits.

YOU BORN TODAY are an innately enthusiastic, outgoing person; are well endowed mentally and often achieve physically as well as, for instance, in the world of sports. Yours is a Sign of vibrance and magnanimity and it also endows you with great will power, determination, idealism, keen intuition and foresight. Your personality fits you for leadership in many fields, but you must curb a tendency to be overbearing with others.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it:
AXYDLBAAXR
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
